Sandra Postel is director of the Global Water Policy Project and lectures, writes, and consults on international water issues. In 2010 she was appointed Freshwater Fellow of the National Geographic Society, where she is lead water expert for the Society’s freshwater initiative. Postel is the author of several acclaimed books, including Last Oasis: Facing Water Scarcity, which appears in eight languages and was the basis for a 1997 PBS documentary, and is co-author, with Brian Richter, of Rivers for Life: Managing Water for People and Nature. Her essay “Troubled Waters” was selected for Best American Science and Nature Writing. From 2000 to 2008, Postel was visiting senior lecturer in environmental studies at Mount Holyoke College, and, late in that term served as director of the college’s Center for the Environment. Postel is a Pew Scholar in Conservation and the Environment, and in 2002 was named one of the "Scientific American 50" for her contributions to water policy.
